

Jose Castro Outlines Upcoming Election Law Issues During Webinar

Spencer Fane attorney Jose Castro discussed key election law issues ahead of the upcoming November presidential election during a Lawline CLE on July 1.

During his presentation, Election Issues and Opportunities for Lawyers, Jose reviewed recent election law legal developments, discussed the role of non-election lawyers in elections, and explored opportunities to support election administration.

Election laws, political activity, and election administration have been in the daily headlines as the 2024 election approaches. The program unpacked election law issues that lawyers, firms, and clients may face in this election year.

At Spencer Fane, Jose serves as a full-service litigator representing public, private, and corporate clients in all their litigation and land use permitting needs. He specializes in various forms of litigation related to real estate, focusing on land use actions, condemnation issues, and easement disputes. Jose also assists clients in navigating through land use and zoning permitting procedures established by different municipalities and agencies.
